

CE Mark Compliance

Ensure Your Product's Conformity to EU Regulations

Conformité Européenne (CE) is a required mark for most products that are placed on the market within European Union (EU) member states, or for trading in the European Economic Area (EEA) and European Free Trade Association (EFTA) countries. The CE mark is a self-declaration by the manufacturer that its product complies with the relevant, legal European requirements. Failure to label a product with required regulatory compliance markings could result in it being permanently shelved in addition to costly fines and penalties

Requirements for Manufacturers

Manufacturers are responsible for verifying that their products meet EU requirements for safety, health and the environment. For CE mark compliance, the procedure varies by product but generally includes the following:

- Identify applicable directives and harmonized standards
- Verify product-specific requirements
- Identify whether an independent conformity assessment by a notified body is necessary
- Test the product to check its conformity
- Compile and keep available required technical documentation
- Affix the CE marking and complete an EU Declaration of Conformity, which must include:
 - The manufacturer's name, trademark and contact information
 - A list of the directives and standards used in the assessment of the product
 - Information on any notified body involved in the product's conformity assessment

Why Is CE Mark Compliance Important?

The CE marking is a requirement based on EU directives for products. It is illegal to sell a product in the EU that doesn't bear a CE mark where there is an EU directive that applies; and, the great majority of products are covered by at least one EU directive. By showing the CE mark, businesses know that the product can be traded in the EU, EEA and EFTA, and consumers are guaranteed a level of safety throughout those areas. The mark itself simplifies things for machine builders and distributors; just one marking is necessary for CE mark compliance in over 30 countries.

OUR CE MARK CONSULTING SERVICES

With our CE Mark consulting services,
we can help you:

- Identify which directives apply to your product
- Meet applicable requirements
- Help create relevant technical documentation
- Affix your product with a CE mark label
- Complete your EU Declaration of Conformity

GET STARTED TODAY!

Call Us At 877-748-0244